DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 15, 16, 18-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Mandelman et al. The features of the claimed invention are taught by Mandelman which shows an FET with a trench isolation region, such as (31) in Fig. 3, and having a nitride liner (16) located on the sidewalls and bottom wall of the trench. Mandelman also teaches the formation of both NFET and PFET devices at the same time, and specifically mentions that the nitride liner should be used for the NFET devices only, while the nitride liner may be removed from the areas of the chip where the PFET devices are formed (col. 3, l.65-67).

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 17 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Mandelman in view of Divakaruni et al. While Mandelman teaches the basic advantages of using a nitride liner, he does not specifically teach the use of very thin nitride layers between 0.1 to about 2.0 nm. However, Divakaruni, which also forms nitride lined trenches for use in semiconductor devices, teaches that such nitride layers may advantageously be on the order of 1 nm thick. Such a nitride layer would meet the dimension range recited in claim 17. One skilled in the art would be motivated to combine these references because applying a thinner nitride layer would save time and simplify the manufacture of the Mandelman device, while still achieving the desired isolation characteristics.
